Clifford Items.

Two young men and one old man, who were engaged in driving Mr. Tinker's and another man's oxen, took one from each yoke and sold them at Susquehanna. One had been butchered and the other (Mr. Tinker's) was found at a slaughter-house, (to be killed in a few hours,) by Geo. Crandall of Clifford, who telegraphed to Mr. Jas. Tinker. He took the train to Susquehanna and brought home his trusty animal. The drovers who sold these cattle are ~~not~~ now stopping at Montrose Lockup.

Carbondale Advance, November 17, 1877, p. 3